

École Boundary Week Ahead

Dear Boundary Families,

This week, our students worked hard to build community. They explored their own identities, practiced perspective-taking, and learned what it means to think about others. We reviewed our Code of Conduct together, welcomed motivational speaker Jack Thomas, and even danced along to his brilliant drumming.

Today, students will move into their classrooms for the 2026–2027 school year. This is an exciting day, and our staff are eager to welcome students and begin building caring, supportive learning communities where every child can thrive.

Class placements are made with thoughtful professional consideration. We appreciate your trust in the staff who have dedicated significant time to creating balanced, supportive classes that offer the best opportunities for learning and belonging. Every family should know that their child is known, valued, important and advocated for here at Boundary.

Students respond to class placements in different ways—some with immediate excitement, others with uncertainty, especially if they were hoping to be with a particular friend or teacher. All these feelings are normal.

How Families Can Help

If your child feels disappointed or unsure, you can support them by:

- Listening to their feelings
- Acknowledging that change can be hard
- Staying positive about the year ahead
- Reassuring them that they will be supported
- Reminding them that friendships continue across classrooms
- Sharing confidence in the thoughtful placement process
- Affirming that we care deeply about their wellbeing

Thank you for your ongoing partnership, trust, and support. We look forward to a wonderful year of learning, growth, and connection together.

Important Updates and reminders:

- Boundary's Sensory Room is Open! Boundary's new sensory room is officially open for students! This dedicated calm space supports the diverse needs of all learners. Whether a student needs a moment to regulate, refocus, or to recharge, the room offers a quiet environment with sensory tools to help them feel grounded and ready to learn. While especially helpful for students who experience sensory sensitivities or find busy environments overwhelming, the room is available to all students — because every child has moments when they need a little extra support. We are deeply grateful to the BPAC, volunteers, families, and community members who helped bring this space to life. A special thank-you to Ms. Bradley and our sensory room team, for their care and dedication in creating such a meaningful resource for our school.
- Boundary After School Programs for Term 1:
A variety of engaging after-school programs will be offered this term. Explore the offerings here on the website: After School Programs | North Vancouver School District
